Auditor of State Office.

Sept. 12, 1846.
 The attention of persons, the interest of whose mortgages to the different trust funds may be in arrears, is invited to the following provisions of the act of January 19, 1846. It will be seen that the penalties for non-payment are heavier than have heretofore been charged, and it will be materially to the advantage of mortgagors to call and settle for all interest due for six months, prior to the 1st of October next.

HOSPITAL FOR THE INSANE.

Sec. 3. It shall be the duty of the Auditor of State, by the first day of April and the first day of October, in each year, to make out a list of all mortgages to said fund, upon which the mortgagee have failed for more than six months to pay the amount of interest due, setting forth in such list the name of the mortgagor, a description of the land mortgaged, and the amount due thereon, which said list the Auditor shall publish in some one of the newspapers published in Indianapolis, having the most general circulation, for four successive weeks after the first days of April and October, respectively, specifying a day in said publication, after the expiration of the said four weeks, when the lands upon which interest remains unpaid, shall be sold according to the laws now in force in relation to such lands, except so far as the same are modified by this act.

Sec. 4. Any mortgagor whose lands may have been advertised for sale, as specified in the preceding section, may at any time before an actual sale thereof, restate his mortgage, by paying the interest due at the time of re-instating the same, together with the costs of advertising the lands, and five per cent damages on the principal due. 29

We improved an hour or two on Thursday last, to visit the Building now in the progress of erection, designed for the retreat and medical treatment of that unfortunate class of society, the insane. Agreeably to the excellent plan, the very best we believe in the United States, drawn by our excellent architect, Mr. Elder, the building is rapidly progressing. It is now towards the completion of the first story in brick; the lumber on hand and ready for use; and a thorough examination of the work shows it to be well done so far. This building, situated on the very finest site in Marion county, will be an honor to the State; and that man does not live who will ever object to the slight tax levied, designed and sure to accomplish so much good. The celebrated philanthropist, Miss Dix, who has vast experience in such matters, gives it her unqualified opinion that this establishment will favorably compare with any in the world. Her opinion is of importance; and sure we are, that when every Indian scholar have examined the building and studied its uses, not one but will be proud of the noble undertaking. We hope all who visit this city will make it a point to visit the building and examine the plans.

ORDER OF OLD FELLOWS.—From a printed copy of the "Proceedings of the R. W. Grand Lodge of the State of Indiana, at its annual communication, held at Indianapolis, July, 1846," we copy the following list of officers, (with some corrections supplied by the G. M.): "For the benefit of whom it may concern," as the underwriters say, together with the places of residence of the principal officers:

Grand Master, J. B. McFARLAND, Lafayette.
 Deputy G. M., P. B. BROWN, Lafayette.
 Grand Secretary, JOHN DIXON, Jeffersonville.
 Grand Warden, W. A. DAY, Jeffersonville.
 Grand Treasurer, J. B. McCHESNEY, Indianapolis.
 Grand Conductor, J. P. CHAPMAN, Indianapolis.
 Grand Chaplain, OLIVER DUBOIS, Vevay.
 G. Guardian, CHRISTOPHER TAYLOR, Hagerstown.
 Grand Marshal, GEORGE BROWN, Madison.
 Grand Representative, BEN. B. TAYLOR, Madison.

DISTRICT DEPUTY GRAND MASTERS.

District No. 1—William M. French.
 District No. 2—Oliver Dufour.
 District No. 3—A. C. Christfield.
 District No. 4—Solomon Malbourn.
 District No. 5—Daniel Woolsey.
 District No. 6—Theophilus Lemp.
 District No. 7—Joseph Ristine.
 District No. 8—Jacob Walker.
 District No. 9—Job Eldridge.
 District No. 10—John Saunders.
 District No. 11—J. E. Hollister.
 District No. 12—J. R. Jones.
 District No. 13—Benjamin Lippincott.
 District No. 14—F. D. Johnson.
 District No. 15—J. P. Chapman.

Local Improvements.

Croakers to the contrary notwithstanding, the improvements in our corporation this year will favorably compare with those of years preceding. One of the best, the very best, is the straightening of Pogue's Run. Instead of an infamous nuisance, now it may be called decidedly an advantage if not a "pleasure spot." Added to this, the grading of our streets over that bottom is one of the most important improvements. A few individuals, we are sorry to say, are deserving of no credit for their opposition to public improvements; but they will learn in another year, at least, that the people have been robbed enough, and that they have their share of this world's goods. They had better fall in with public sentiment, now becoming honest, before it is too late.

These improvements, with those of the Common Council, in repairs of the streets, &c. are all important to the city, and the credit will be properly bestowed where the work is done well. The grumbling of the aristocracy at their taxes, should not be heeded. If all improvements were for their benefit, they would still grumble. We say, go ahead and complete what you undertake, and tax accordingly. No honest, hardworking man will grumble at it.

But we are off the starting point. We mean to say that, what with new buildings, (for which there is plenty of room for more) and the general improvements about the city, Indianapolis is wonderfully advancing. Would that we could succeed in improving the morals in an equal ratio! There is yet hope.

VERMONT ELECTION.—The Boston Atlas of the 11th has returns from eighty-three towns in Vermont, in which State the annual election took place on the 1st. They show the following result, in the vote for Governor: For Eaton, (whig,) 10,502; for Smith, (dem.), 7,173; Liberty vote, (candidate's name not given), and scattering, 2,726. The whig vote has slightly increased as compared with that of last year, and the democratic decreased. So far as heard from, there are chosen to the House of Representatives, 52 whigs, 30 democrats, and 4 Liberty men. The Atlas says: "Although not entirely decisive of the result, they [the returns] indicate that there has, probably, again been no choice of Governor by the people, although there has been a considerable increase of the whig vote, and the probable election of Messrs. Henry, Collamer, and Marsh, in three congressional districts, and no choice in the fourth."

Two companies of the St. Louis Legion, the Texas Free Corps and the Fusiliers, have been paid off and mustered out of service.

Sketches in the Camp.

BY AN EX-REPORTER OF THE STATE SENTINEL.

No. 5.

The 1st Regiment is still at Camp Barita on the North side of the Rio Grande. The sick are gaining strength and most of them are likely to recover. One of the Washak Rangers was buried on the 3d of August. The first Monday in August passed off with scarcely any excitement, and no fighting at all; but it was plain to be seen that the Hoosier boys had not forgotten what an election day was. At sundown, some of the men commenced hallooing for Marshall and others for Whitcomb, but I am certain that the Whitecombers rather out-generalled their opponents, which led me to believe that Whitcomb was not so unpopular among the volunteers as had been represented by fair-landers, and I would say to those who say that the volunteers are not all persecutors or impostors—that we give credit to whom credit is due. If every body treated us as well as Gov. Whitcomb has done and endeavored to do, we would all feel as this morning as an epicure after breakfast.

On the 4th, a man was seen dead, floating down the Rio Grande, he was poor, but the shore and a thimble was found in his pocket, but no papers, or any thing by which a clue could be got to his name.

Our camp ground is a much more pleasant place than we anticipated when I first looked upon it when it was in the state of nature. Then it was overgrown with musquite (pronounced musquit) bushes, briars, vines, &c., but when we cleared off every thing except some of the largest trees (which did not exceed six inches in diameter) it changed the scenery. The trees afforded a shade to parry off the burning rays of the sun; and at night, as we collected in squads and seated ourselves upon a seat that is free to all—one that cannot be monopolized by lords or rented out altogether by capitalists—the Earth—we could extend our eyes to the north, where the scenery looked so much like a peach orchard, that we had almost been deceived by accident. We should have run a foot race for peaches, and shared a better disappointment, besides coming in contact with thorns. But this counterfeit peach orchard is rather troublesome to our craving appetites. It is true a moonlight view of a peach orchard is not to be despised even by one who looks upon the beauties of nature with indifference, but to think that our appetites have to be satisfied with a view of this is too much. However, it reminds us of bygone days—when we can think of the sweets of civil life as enjoyed by our friends at home—yes, we can almost see the Rev. H. W. B. (of that excellent paper, the Farmer and Gardener) standing at his desk with his umbrella leaning against the wall, devouring the last peach sent him by an attentive patron, and then placing himself in a position to resume his pen and wield it with ability. Until again visited by a patron, no less worthy and treated to an almost equally inviting.

Nearly every thing here abounds with horns or thorns. Scarcely a tree, shrub, or vine grows without thorns. The prickly pear grows to an enormous size—some of the flat leaves of the prickly pear are a foot and a half long, the top covered over with small spines containing acid, and the taste of the fruit is by no means palatable. A kind of pepper grows here upon a vine several feet high. I have no means of ascertaining the strength of this pepper, but from its taste I should judge that it was not inferior to the African Bird Pepper.

As regards horns—we have cattle with very long horns, horned frogs; and even horned snakes, and horned lizards. The latter is a small reptile, the half-sized horned snake, and the horned lizard, (too short to prevent them from hurting some of the boys.

One of the Putnam Blues died on the 9th of August. Mr. John Gearhart, of the Washak Inhabitables, died on the 12th. He was a brave young man, and an ardent friend to the institutions of his country. He had a father and brother belonging to the same company. His father was one of the first settlers in Richardsonville county. To belong to such a company as the Washak Inhabitables—to be commanded by an officer as worthy as Capt. Milroy—would be an honor that any lover of his country would be proud of—but to have this honor and belong to a family that was willing to turn out en masse, and fight a enemy when the rights of the nation were at stake, would be an honor worthy the heroes of the Revolution.

As I hear the name of Rio Grande echo upon my ear—so long as I am reminded of the scenery now before me—so long as I think of our country, its stars and stripes—so long will I cherish in my mind the memory of the young man who was this day interred.

I have just ascertained the number of deaths in our Regiment (1st) since its organization, which resulted as follows: Fountain Riflemen, 2; Washak Rangers, 2; Marion Volunteers, none; Montgomery Volunteers, 1; Mad Anthony Guards, none; Hendricks Volunteers, 4; Wayne Guards, 2; Cass Volunteers, none; Putnam Blues, 1; Washak Inhabitables, 1. Total, 13.

It seems to me that this is a small number in comparison to the number in the Regiment, when we take into consideration the change of climate, diet, &c. It is very frequently the case, that there are more deaths of the same number of people when they are at home enjoying the comforts of life. It may be proper to remark that about half of the deaths were owing to the measles. Those that have recovered from the measles are very weak, and do not gain their strength as fast as they would at home. There is also a cholera epidemic in the camp. The soldiers are very much affected by it. The Fountain Riflemen cannot be praised too highly. I mean Joseph Longmire. He has paid great attention to the sick, not only in his own company, but in other companies. He has lost many hours of sleep to relieve the distressed, and is justly entitled to the gratitude of the whole company. He is not rewarded in this world, I hope he will be in the next. Lieut. McMillan, of the same company, has also been very attentive to the sick. Here is the place for a close observer to see who obeys the scriptural injunction "Thou shalt love thy neighbor as thyself."

United States Senate of 1847.

The New York Globe has the following statement and estimate of the probable political standing of the United States Senate, commencing after the 4th of March, 1847:

"Of the whigs whose terms expire in 1847, successors have been elected to Evans of Maine, Colley of New Hampshire, and Barrow of Louisiana. The gentlemen elected are James W. Bradbury, John F. Hale, and Solomon U. Downs, all democrats, though it is doubtful how far Hale will lean towards democratic party. The legislatures that are to elect Senators in place of Simmons, of Rhode Island, Mangum, of North Carolina, and Archer, of Virginia, have already been elected. Simmons and Mangum will be succeeded by whigs, and Archer by a democrat. Woodbridge, of Michigan, and Jarnagin, of Tennessee, will in all probability be succeeded by democrats, though it is said that Hale will lean towards democratic party.
